Dear employee or committee of The LEGO Group in charge of hiring,

In 1995, when I was the age of three years, I was diagnosed with brain cancer. It was treated successfully, but the removal of the preexisting tumors left residual scarring and brain damage leaving me with severe motor skill impairment.

Doctors recommended many forms of physical therapy playing with various toys and video games, but nothing offered what I needed to rebuild myself. Everything was too complex for me to comprehend in my weakened state or too simple to be beneficial to my redevelopment. By 1997 it was starting to look like I'd never get better.

Until I was introduced to the LEGO Brick with my first LEGO product, the 4128-1 XL Freestyle Bucket. With LEGO a child can gradually move up from playing with simple building bricks to complex castles and spaceship, and it was the perfect toy for my recovery. From then on I started to improve dramatically, and it is because of LEGO that I am able to function at all in my day to day life.

I want nothing more than to thank The LEGO Group for helping me throughout my life by being the best employer I can for them. I have experience working at various retail establishments and will be a very efficient sales clerk. This retail experience, combined with my experience as a tour guide of a museum and my 14 years with LEGO, mean that I can quite easily assist any customer with any inquiries that they have. I have detailed knowledge of the history of The LEGO Group and the LEGO Brand. I also have online experience as a retro graphics designer; a hobby very much inspired by my love of LEGO, which will also be of benefit.

I look forward to following up on this application soon. I plan to follow up during the week following my application, and I will very definitely be a frequent customer of The LEGO Store in The Fashion Show Mall after it opens on April 25.

Thank you for your consideration,
